GEN JOE WHEELER'S, OPINION

It is absolutely Sound on the Question of t

Cleveland, Ohio, January 2.—Gen. Joseph Wheeler was in this city to day in the interest of new army rifle. In a newspaper interveiw he said in reply to a question on the possibility of a political break in the South:

"There is no question that the superiority of the white race in the South must be maintained. Anyone who has seen the South under the rule of the other color, as it was after the war, can understand why this must be so. For one reason white supremacy alone can insure financial stability. There will be no political break in the solid South by any party which tries to interfere from the North through the medium of peliticians with the solving of the color problem by the South."

Treasurer Jennings Says Not More Than One Tenth of Taxes are Paid.

State Treasurer Jennings when asked yesterday what proportion of the State taxes for the year had been paid in said that so far only about $100,000 in round figures had been received at the State treasury. This statement tends to substantiate in a very forcible manner the general talk about the hard times, particularly when it is considered that the entire amount of taxes due the State for the year amounts to very nearly a million dollars. It is hoped that the extension of time for the payment of taxes without the penalty will result in getting in a good proportion of the outstanding taxes.

A Newsboy's Gratitude.

A writer in the the New York Recorder tells the story of a newsboy who, months after he had eaten a Christmas supper, insisted on paying the kind journalist who provided it. On Christmas night an oldtime newspaper writer stepped into a cheap restaurant in Park Row for a cup of hot coffee. As he took his seat at one of the small tables a ragged little boy planted himself on the stool opposite. boy's eyes as he fumbled a nickel yatt, who "enjoyed" at once, as he and said: "A plate of beans."

I sipped my coffee and watched the boy ravenously devour the beans. Whispering to the waiter, I told him to bring a plate of corned beef, some bread and butter and a bowl of coffee for the boy. The little fellow stared for a moment and then began his meal. In a few minutes the beef, beans, bread and coffee had disappeared, yet the boy's appetite was not satis-

ULCERS. Sores and Ulcers never become chronic unless the blood is in poor condition - is sluggish, weak and unable to throw off the poisons that accumulate in it. The system must be relieved of the unhealthy matter through the sore, and great danger to life would follow should it heal before the blood has been made pure and healthy and all impurities eliminated from the system. S.S.S. begins the cure by first cleansing and invigorating the blood, building up the general health and removing from the system A CONSTANT DRAIN effetematter. UPON THE SYSTEM. When this has been accomplished the discharge gradually ceases, and the sore or picer heals. It is the tendency of these old ndolent sores to grow worse and worse, and eventually to destroy the bones. Local applications, while soothing and to some extent alleviate pain, cannot reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does, and no matter how apparently hopeless your condition, even though your constitution has broken down, it will bring relief when nothing else can. It supplies the rich, pure blood necessary to heal the sore and nourish the debilitated, diseased body. Mr. J. B. Talbert, Lock Box 245, Winona, Miss., says: "Six years ago my leg from the knee to the foot was one solid sore. Several physicianal treated me and I made two trips to Hot Springs, but found no relief. I was induced to try S. S. S., and it made a complete cure. I have been a per-fectly well man ever since."

> The Man that Came After the Angel."

[A Minister's Experience, Profitable also to the Laity.]

It was rather a bitter laugh to come from a young, strong fellow with a good-natured face. But there in his lonely study, thawing at the stove from the cold of a long winter drive and the chill of a half warmed church, sat Rev. John Brown, B. A.

During his round of visits that day There was a wolfish glare in the he had come to old Uncle Billy Woodsaid, "poor health and second wife." "No," said Uncle Billy to the minister, as he sought from him sympathy for his various troubles and came at last to the subject of his second wife, "No, I ain't got nothing to say

And Rev. John Brown laughed bitterly as he repeated quietly to himself, "nothing to say against her -but the first was an 'angel,'" then he added softly, "poor thing!" Then he began musing while the fire burned, and said again, "Poor thing, to come after an 'angel,' but it's just my luck, too. There was my brother "Bring him some mince and Bob, his pants lasted longer, his umkin pie," said I to the wai- boots were always better blacked, his lessons better learned, and if I said The boy gazed at the two pieces anything out of the way it was, 'Bob

"In college Cousin Tom was the 'angel' and won all the medals and delivered the valedictory and was held up to me by all the professors, and now"—and there was an ill-defined mumble that sounded very much like "brother take it," "and now-it is worse than ever. Nothing to say against me! oh, no! not at all, again the rather grim laugh echoed through the lonely room, for Rev. John Brown, B. A., was only human and a good deal tired and rather disposed to be blue.

cheery, hearty fellow, a good average student and athlete, a fairly good preacher and a thoroughly honest above board fellow, whom all men as well as women liked and children all trusted. But today he had a considerable overdose of "the angel." "The angel" in this case was Rev. Frederick Kittering, Ph. D., John's immediate predecessor in the pastorate of the Evanston Congregational church. He was a good man, there was no doubt of that, for John knew him, but, as John said, "You know the fellow must have been an 'angel,' for Deacon Jones said, 'Mr. Kittering used to hold prayor meeting every Tuesday evening at Bolton's Corners and Wednesday in our home church and Thursday at the Landing,' while Deacon Sitwell who lived eight miles in the other direction from Deacon Jones said, 'Yes, sir. rain or shine, Mr. Kittering never missed a prayer meeting. Tuesday evening at the Glen school house' (ten miles from Bolton's Corners and at the same hour) 'and Thursday at the Old Union church in Springfield' (thirteen miles from the Landing)."

Then John learned that Mr. Kittering used to preach "every" Sunday afternoon in two places sixteen miles apart at the same hour and, moreover, that he "was the greatest man for exchanging with his brother ministers," though when he got the time John could not tell.

Then about visiting, at least forty families told John that Mr. Kittering used to visit "a great deal oftener than you do. Why, you are quite a stranger. He used to come and bring Mrs. Kittering and spend the day with us once every month at least." "Forty into thirty-one himself; "the fellow must have been an angel and not subject to the usual limitations of space and time."

But that wasn't all, for three different sick folks claimed the honor of Mr. Kittering's Monday afternoons. With all that, as Mr. Barber put it, "Mr. Kittering, sir, was a great visitor; he was always on the road." "He must have been," John very feelingly replied. "Oh, the depth of Mr. Kittering's sermons," said old John McLeod, more familiarly known as "Holy Jonn;" "that man spent days and nights in his study." "Just so," said John, and I am afraid he meant more than he said.

Beyond all this, Mr. Kittering could sing like a lark, draw on the black-board like an artist and play the organ like-an angel. John couldn't do any of these things, but he heard that Mr. Kitterring could. Mr. Kittering gave lectures in the college, was a popular stump speaker and even wrote poetry which the choir sang to music of his compos-

His Sunday school addresses were wonderful, his funeral orations deeply sympathetic, his power in prayer remarkable and his visits to the sick a real means of health. Everywhere he went John heard of him and the singing of his praises, but at last this very afternoon John had gone into Widow McCammus', snd there on the mantel in the very center stood the photo of Mr. Kittering, against this one, bu' my first was an "Oh," said the old lady, "but he was a darling."

So as the fire died down John got bluer and bluer. It seemed no use He knew they must be unconsciously exaggerating, for at least no man could be in two places at once, but after such a man could there be any chance for a plain, humble man to win their hearts and do good work?

Just then John thought of Uncle Esek Martin, who in his later bachelor days sought comfort in the form of a widow and found it not.

One day she led him to the cem-Dominie Wilson used to say, 'Your so copiously that Uncle Esek lost brother Robert would never have patience and said to a friend he made that mistake!' In the games, buttonholed, "I'd give ten dollars if too, no matter how well I did, the she only had him again." And John boys used to say to the new comers, thought too, "Well, I'd give some 'Oh, but you ought to have seen Bob thing if they only had their angel, Mr. Kittering, back.

But being young and healthy and Christian John took his Bible, turned to the verse which says of a certain woman, "She hath done what she could," and said to himself, "Well, the Master knows I have tried to, so it's all right with him," and giving himself a mental and physical shake Brown made the very walls of his turned into bed.

All the same he couldn't forge Kittering. He didn't get any chance to, and when a year later the way opened for his long cherished desire to go abroad as a foreign missionary I am afraid there was just a little Now John Brown was naturally a Kittering mixed in with the application he sent in for a place to do pio neer work, "not building on any other man's foundation." He went to the Congo after the usual addresses and presentations and farewell meetings, all of which John, being modest, set down to the fact of his going as a foreign missionary. A year later the same John, but

There are all kinds of men in the Piano business, but the meanest competi tor that has attracted our attention recently, is the man who sets to and wilfully tries to dissatisfy customers that have already bought fine Pianos by telling them they have been swindled, etc. We would advise such men as this to get out to work, put in the time they waste in such work as this in hunting new customers, and perhaps they could sell a Piano once in a while.

The class of people who buy the STIEFF PIANOS are the best people on earth, and their minds are not to be changed by every little wind that blows. STIEFF PIANOS are the very finest Pianos made, and are sold all over the reliable STIEFF PIANO all the time, and when anyone tells you he can furnish something as good for less money-just remember you have heard "Ghost stories" before.
